

why we should not allow cell phone use during any stage of flight:

- a. air rage is rampant with the small space, crowded flights and hassles at security, why allow them to get irritated with the rude, loud cell phoners.
- b. we need their attention during certain phases of the flight ie...safety demos, emergencies, etc.
- c. first time flyers that would make emergency phone calls when it probably won't be an emergency.

I just see more problems than solutions. What is their main reason for wanting them on board in the first place? Probably just for convenience. I think we have plenty of free time already with cell phone use until the door closes and as soon as we land. That works! Thank you for listening.
